

Prominent US Virtual Assistant Company, Assistant Angel, Launches Virtual Assistant Training Network

Raleigh, North Carolina - On December 1, 2011, the Virtual Assistant Training Network was launched by a well-established leader in virtual assistance, Angel Lebak of AssistantAngel.com.

Angel Lebak started her virtual assistant business several years ago and in less than a year had a wait list of micro and small business owners wanting her assistance. Lebak's success drew to her dozens of other Virtual Assistants (also known as VAs) and people seeking a career change. To help other VAs, Lebak created a group on the ComeOnInside.com professional network for the Raleigh area, inside919.com, where she was a high contributing co-manager.

"I am convinced that the small and micro business community can be absolutely transformed by quality Virtual Assistants," said Angel Lebak who has personally coached and mentored dozens of virtual assistants and helped launch a number of virtual assistant businesses. "The small and micro business owners are slowing their growth by trying to do everything themselves."

Angel Lebak's clients are outspoken about the value she delivered. www.virtualassistantsocialmedia.com And the people she has helped launch new careers and businesses as Virtual Assistants endorse her character, skill and value.

Colleen Gray is one of the Virtual Assistants who was in Lebak's inside919.com VA group and who received mentorship from Angel Lebak. "Angel has been my mentor for the last year, and I would highly recommend her to anyone wanting to start a virtual assistant company, or needing help in growing their business," said Gray. "She taught me the basics for my own virtual assistant company, and is always there to help me when I need guidance."

The new Virtual Assistant Training Network distinguishes itself by the mentorship that Lebak provides, a facilitated online community, and top notch training and practices. www.virtualassistanttrainingnetwork.com Lebak's experience as co-manager of the inside919.com micro and small business professional community (with over 3,000 members) gave her in-depth experience in understanding how people can best utilize online communities. Lebak may be the single best known professional on the site, a testament to her commitment to supporting thriving online networks.

Commenting on the new Virtual Assistant Training Network, Gray said, "Angel keeps informed of all of the latest tools that VAs need to provide excellent service to their clients, as well as the ones that help VAs use our time most efficiently. She is a very reachable coach and teacher, with high integrity and a passion for helping others."

All aspects of building virtual assistant skills, and, building a successful virtual assistant practice, will be covered in the training network through a variety of methods to suit varied learning styles. Members will have their choice of videos and reading, discussions and coaching opportunities. Membership on VirtualAssistantTrainingNetwork.com has several durations to choose from with promotional specials for the launch.

Virtual Assistants seeking additional training, mentoring and community; and men and women seeking to pursue a flexible career with expanding opportunities as a VA are encouraged to visit VirtualAssistantTrainingNetwork.com.
